Abstract

For the student creativity program in this entrepreneurship class, we run a business program for making our own bags from flannel. The flannel cloth itself is easy to find in the nearest shops and the price is also quite affordable. Besides being easy to get, flannel is also easy to make several forms of crafts, one of which is a bag. The bag that we are going to make is a sling bag model, where this model is loved by children today or it can be called a trend. Here what we need in addition to tools and materials is that we need skills and creative power. So that the bag that we will make can attract consumers to buy. In the community, there are many bags that make consumers want to buy them, but the prices are less affordable for consumers. Therefore, we take advantage of this situation to make bags of our own creations in order to help consumers to support their appearance with the bags that we make, of course, these bags are cheap in the pockets of students and teenagers.

Literature Review

A. Activity benefits

Our target market is teenagers, students and university students. The target market according to Jaya (6: 2011) is the market segments or groups or customers planned by retailers to be served due to limited resources that retailers have and must prepare at once. We determine our marketing location later through social media and our closest friends because it is more effective. We will market our products on our social accounts. And we will offer it to friends around our environment.

B. Products

Products are goods that have been produced from something that will be offered to consumers. According to Kotler in (Habibah, 35: 2016) a product is anything that can be offered to the market to get attention, buy it for use, or consume it that can satisfy wants or needs. Products that are produced from flannel into bags are of various shapes depending on the tastes and orders of consumers who want to buy the products we have produced, including:

1. Rectangular bag.
2. Floral-patterned bags, and others.

C. Business Location

The location of the business is very important and very supportive for the development or failure of a business in the future. In determining the location of our business, we choose the available social media as well as in residential and campus areas.

Research Methods

A. Observation

The first thing to do is make direct observations of the environment around us. The purpose of observing the surrounding environment is to look for business opportunities that can develop well in the future. Because people around us prefer to use cellphones or gadgets, therefore we think our products are more effective when sold via social media. Apart from that, we can also market our products around our environment.

B. Making Business Planning

The next step after getting the idea to start a business is to make a business plan. In this business planning, it explains the business background, type of business, business location, marketing strategy for the schedule of activities, sources of funds, estimated costs required, revenue, and the benefits that will be obtained. In addition, it also includes a business feasibility analysis that we will carry out.

C. Marketing strategy

The marketing strategy of our group is carried out to support the success of our business. The marketing strategy according to Craven in (Yuliana, 4: 2013) is an analysis of the development strategy and the implementation of activities in the strategy for determining the market for products in each business unit, setting marketing objectives, developing, implementing, and managing the marketing program strategy, determining the market position that is designed to meet the desires of target market consumers. The marketing strategies that we have created are:

1. Make your own bags with various characters and shapes that are of course liked by all circles, both children and adolescents.
2. Selling products at prices affordable to the community.
3. Offering products via online and also directly to colleagues or classmates.
